

Get Your Ex Back – Why No Contact Is Important?

When you have been dumped, it may seem impossible to pick up the pieces and keep moving. You may feel like life isn't worth living without your ex back by your side.

When you have been dumped, it may seem impossible to pick up the pieces and keep moving. You may feel like life isn't worth living without your ex back by your side. Is it hard for you to wake up in the morning or go to bed in the evening? However, there is a solution to get your ex back by your side and put your life together once again.

The first and most important step to get your ex back by your side is to cut off any sort of contact. There are several reasons for you to do this. Listed below are 4 reasons to do so:

- (1) Prevents the possibility of negative things being said especially during fights.
- (2) Ability and time to cool down, leaving you time to get a grip on your life.
- (3) Gives them an opportunity to miss you and you miss them.
- (4) Time to get organized with an action plan to win him or her back.

You need to understand that by having no contact with him or her means absolutely no contact. No letters, no e-mail, no text messaging, no phone calls and no visits of any kind. It means you give up cold turkey until the month or so is up. Don't go to places that you know he or she attends frequently either.

Your second step is to overhaul yourself during this break. Why feeling a painful loss is normal and natural, you should still go out and do the things you were doing before. Be with friends and family who are close to you. People who stay depressed after a breakup hurt more in the short term.

When you are ready to get your ex back by your side after a month, you need to think clearly and be level-headed. Contact him or her (once the month is up) with a plan in mind. You may find yourself struggling to win him or her back difficult without one. A plan versus no plans will leave you hoping that what you say and do will get your ex back by your side.
