The break-up of relationships is sadly common, and this raises a pertinent question - is it wise to decide getting your ex girlfriend back after a break-up? While you may wish for a direct answer, there are actually a number of mitigating factors that you should take into consideration.

This means that the answer will depend on individual circumstances. There are some circumstances when getting back together is the best solution while in others it is not. The confusion is even more since there is a lot of grey area in between. In some situations, the answer can be either yes or no. Still in other circumstances, the answer to this question is, not at the moment.

Every situation should therefore be looked at individually. However, there are general guidelines. Fortunately, in many situations getting back together is the best answer. In such a circumstance, you should be aware of the best cause of action to take.

Here are some things that will help you to make a wise decision.

Make proper use of the break-up period

You should use the break-up period to take a hard look at yourself in order to determine your true feelings. For instance, have you been really hurt by the break-up? Or are you just upset that you have been rejected? These are two different things, and you should be able to separate them. The answer to these questions will help in determining whether it is best to get back with your ex girlfriend.

Every relationship has its ups and downs. You should weigh the positive aspects of your broken relationship against the negative ones.

The honest answer you come up with will help you to find out whether it is really worth re-establishing the relationship or not. There is no need in restoring a relationship that did more harm than good. However, if you do not take the time to review the relationship, you will always wonder whether you had let go of a golden opportunity.

Consider your real motives

You should determine the exact reasons why you would like to get back together with your ex girlfriend. Is it something you genuinely feel is appropriate or are you simply doing it since that is what others expect of you? Remember that this is your own relationship and you won't live it for any other person. It is only you and your partner who should really decide whether reconciliation is the best choice. Although you can receive advice from other people, you should not let anyone compel you into a decision you are not comfortable with.
