

How Do I Know if I Really Want My Ex Back

What you need to figure out is both what you want and what you need. Do you genuinely want him back?

When a relationship ends it can be a very painful and confusing experience. If it's your ex's decision to end it, then the pain is much worse. So it's a time to be careful what you wish for. If you're feeling determined to get him back, it may just be a reaction to the pain. What you need to figure out is both what you want and what you need. Do you genuinely want him back? Or does that want hide another need in your life, which you still have to learn about?

Suddenly you're on your own again and that leaves you feeling pretty desolate. It's the most natural thing in the world to want to put things back exactly as they were. And you probably do still love your ex but if that particular relationship went wrong, it may mean that your ex just wasn't the right person.

It could be that what you miss isn't them. It's being with someone. The highs of your time together have convinced you that a relationship is what you need and want. But the lows have brought this one to an end. So this may be an opportunity disguised as a loss. Although you're feeling pretty bruised right now, there's always something to be learned from every experience.

So stand back. Take a long look at your heart. If you're still convinced that the new hole in your life is really shaped like your ex, then you owe it to yourself to try again. But if you have any doubts, think twice, in case getting what you didn't really want stops you from finding what you really need.
