

How to Use Your Body Language to Flirt and How to Attract a Man - 3 Simple R...

Actions certainly speak a lot more than words. If you are interested in some guy, and want him to notice you, it may not be necessary to go and talk to him.

Actions certainly speak a lot more than words. If you are interested in some guy, and want to learn how to attract a man, it may not be necessary to go and talk to him. If you use your body language to send signals, it may act more strongly and serve your purpose. But always remember to keep it subtle. The subtlety will help him to know that you are interested in him and not eager for him. There is a lot of difference between the two. So let us find out the correct way to charm men without speaking a word.

The body language can act as a magnet. It has enormous power to attract the one you want. But it should be used carefully. If misused, it may hamper the relationship even before it has started. While trying to attract him, you may send the wrong signals and scare him off. You should know how to proceed, be aware of the rules and follow them intently.

Here are some body languages that you can use and how to attract a man.

Warm and gentle smile

A smile is the simplest and easiest way to start an acquaintance. It may be the beginning of a relationship of just glances, but be sure to smile when he looks at you. A warm and genuine smile may be the doorway to his heart. Be sure to make it real lest he may mistake it for a grimace.

Listening ear

If the smile has worked just fine and you reach the level of holding a conversation with him, make sure to listen to him intently. If he notices that you are genuinely interested in what he has to say, he will love to talk to you and will speak his heart out with fervor and give him a chance to flirt. Your body language can work wonders, isn't it?

Be discreet

You mustn't be too open about your approach. Even if you are trying to use your body language to attract a man, you should do it in a way that others don't guess it. You should not let everyone in the room to understand your motives.

You have the power to attract a man and flirt with him. You cannot wait for destiny for such an opportunity. If you like someone, then show them that you are interested, cast the magic spell, use your body language, he will surely run after you and flirt with you. So follow these simple rules girls, and let your magic rule.

Author: Teecee Go

Article downloaded from page eioba.com