Students find it hard to understand the case studies and in writing. In such situations, online experts help can be taken who provide professional assistance in writing.

Assignments on case study are an essential part of academic coursework. It is a detailed description of an entity like a company, person or a group. A case study is a statistical methodology that helps to evaluate knowledge of students not only through books but also through case studies. Students find it hard to investigate the individual entities using disciplinary information on a particular subject. These assignments are important for them as it carries high marks in the curriculum. There are various types of case studies, and students have to follow definite guidelines and demonstrate conscientious analysis in writing case studies. Nursing, law and marketing are the disciplines that have case study assignments and students encounter difficulty in writing them. Students lack disciplinary knowledge and understanding of the entities and as a result, fail to write effective case study assignments.

Case studies are not difficult, as it seems as right knowledge, skills and expertise can resolve the case study assignments. Deadlines are a nightmare for students and give them sleepless nights, and they fear of missing deadlines. Tutors assign assignments with clashing deadlines and make them feel burdened. As a result, they submit an incomplete task that is full of errors and leads to disappointment. They also lack correct guidance that can assist them in writing assignments and in helping them to achieve good grades. Students get confused with the various requirements and end up writing an assignment full off errors. With approaching deadlines, they are left with the only option of using others ideas in their assignments leading to plagiarism and poor quality work. Analysis of the entities in the case study is important, and it acts as the main hurdle for the students in writing them. Choosing of the case study is another important parameter that needs to be taken care of, as it would demonstrate the writing and learning skills. There is a requirement of marketing strategy analysis that is undertaken by a company in marketing case study assignments.

There are important facts that need to be analysed while writing management case studies like topic, structure, marketing tool and research techniques. A topic for the case study should be chosen carefully as it should overlap with the human resource or finance topics. Rather, it should involve strategies and processes after the production. Students face issues in understanding the structure and in knowing the marketing tools. A case study should start with overview, research methodology, followed by context description and finally conclusion and recommendations. The most important things are the research methodology through the application of marketing tools. PESTLE and SWAT are the tools that make aware of the environmental analysis for any company. Marketing mix of the concerned company is involved in the case study discussion that follows the 4Ps: promotion, price, product and place.

Legal case studies also require analysis of disputes between two parties within a legal context. Students need to have critical thinking skills to analyse the dispute carefully and the involved legal domain. They lack knowledge in providing a legal solution that is the most challenging task in writing legal case studies.

A nursing case study requires in-depth knowledge about different diseases to understand the underlying symptoms. Proper diagnosis and proposing proper treatment is the most challenging task in nurse case study writing.
